

The Relationship Between Euglenas and Color

Euglenas photosynthesize by converting light energy. In this experiment, we researched whether the function of photosynthesis changes by changing the color of this light. Because light has different wavelengths depending on its color, we examined whether the difference in color affects the photosynthesis of euglena.