

PTA Question and Answers:

Why did I come to Japan?

I came to Japan because I wanted to experience life in another country. I also had an interest in Japanese culture and wanted to gain a better understanding of how Japanese society works. My interest in Kanji and the Japanese language is also why I came. I did not have much Japanese language experience before so I wanted to learn Japanese in Japan.

What I felt in Japan and at Fuse high school

At the beginning I felt excited, happy and a little nervous. As I was starting at a new school, in a foreign country that doesn't speak English and had to give a self introduction in Japanese. This was a mix of the above feelings. Now, my feelings have changed a little bit. The nervousness has completely gone and excitement has subsided a little. My class has been great and so have my teachers. I am happy to have come to Japan and have met all the people I have. The school has been great, all the teachers have been very nice to me and willing to show me this wonderful country. They have truly given me great memories. However, there were a few things that concerned me but these were very minor and overall my time in Japan has been great. My host family has been amazing. I could not begin to thank them enough and without their support I would not have stayed in Japan as long as I did. I can truly say because of the great time everyone has given me here I wish to come back to Japan again (maybe for the Olympics)
